as in all other cases, the same clauses ought to be inserted to those particular penalties, greater or according to the delinquency of case. Allow me to offer a few lines.

When a rich, old, decrepit, toothless man marries a young blooming virgin, and quarrels, or infidelity ensues, ought to be declared felony.

When a desperate pennyless forerunner runs away with a rich man from her father's house, as punishment be the consequence, it should be burglary.

When a young gay fellow marries a widow for the sake of her money, it should be considered grand larceny; or if the fortune be small, petty larceny.

When a young man of good estate throws himself into the arms of an old belle, supposed to be ugly and fond that she is an Irish pea (that is to say, with debts to amount of 5000l) he should be sentenced to be a scold.

When a couple marry, mutually agreeing each other to be rich, but are only deceived, they should suffer some punishment as for picking pockets.

When a young single man unites himself to a widow with five or six children, he should be sentenced to a pillory.

When a young officer of family in army, or in any other situation, out a penny in the world, starts a train Green with a milliner or a workman as poor as a thoughtless himself, it should be considered a misdemeanor, and the parties confined for the rest of their lives.

It would be easy to enlarge on this and to make the proposed measures more extensive in its provisions, but what I have given above is a sufficient hint to any person who has philanthropy and industry to undertake the formation of

It is objected that such a law would tend to discourage matrimony, however it is, that if it prevented such marriages as we now daily witness, I think it very well contained; for it is better that the king should be without subjects, than that his subjects should be constantly exposed to all wars and domestic animosities so many families.

As the present system be altered, remain your humble servant.

non mi recordo—This ingenious idea of a witness against the Queen's land, seems to grow very popular it is applied to various cases—I find it a good excuse for non-attendance of creditors a good reason why promissory Indulgencies—enlarge, the following instance affords as a specimen of the utility of Majorci's constant answers. Upon the other day was reminding long standing claim against some papers, and was asked anxious creditor if he recollects which he replied, in the language of Majorci—"non mi recordo."

add a pity to the list, it would be this: I pity the Printer, who, after he has earned his scanty stipend, stands but one chance in three of getting it the first time he calls.

EUTERPEIAD, OR MUSICAL INTELLIGENCER.
A Periodical Paper has been published in Boston since April, 1820, exclusively devoted to Musical information.

It embraces a general history of Music from its earliest ages, and is intruded in record the transactions of musical Societies—Reviews of new musical works—Famous Biographical Memoirs of eminent musical men—Correspondence—Anecdotes of Music and Letters instructive and interesting upon every branch of the musical science—Improvements in Musical Instruments, and a compilation of a register of musical transactions—Select Poetry that may appear calculated for musical adaptation, &c. With such intentions it is conceived every topic of interest, personal and general, vocal and instrumental would be embraced—To what extent information may be obtained in the incipient stage of our enterprise, we will not presume to promise, but by a clear exposition of our objects, we show the scope and range of our intentions; and while we entreat the voluntary aid of those who may possess the talents we covet, we at the same time engage to omit no effort of our own to fulfil expectation, we hope however in no measure indebted to the generous contributions of scientific ability than to our own labors. We therefore conclude with a promise, that our abilities such as they are, shall be exerted to the utmost, in the service of the public, in the propagation of all that may appear in us to illustrate and exalt the science.

The Euterpeiad is published every Saturday, at Two Dollars Fifty Cents per Annum, payable half yearly in advance. Every fourth number contains a fashionable song—air with variations—Alls, March or Dance, upon an extra sheet arranged for the Piano Forte.

Persons in the country who procure ten subscribers will receive a file of papers gratis. Regular files or extra numbers may be had by applying to the Editor, at the Franklin Music Warehouse, No. 8, Milk Street, Boston—or at the Euterpeiad Office, No. 19, Merchant's Row.

KEEP constantly for sale, at their Bookstore, Greenfield, all Books which are generally used in Schools.

Among others, that excellent School Book, neatly approved of by all who are acquainted with it, entitled, the Common Reader, consisting of a variety of pieces, original and selected. It is particularly calculated for the improvement of scholars of the first and second classes in the art of reading. By T. STANNON, A. M. Second edition, corrected, improved and enlarged—Price 37 1/2 cents single, $3.50 per dozen.

—ALSO—
The Young Scholar's MANUAL, or Companion to the Spelling Book. By T. STANNON, A. M.
Price 12 1/2 cents single, $1 12 per doz.
This valuable little Book ought to be in the hands of every child who reads in the Spelling Book.

—ALSO—
A NEW EDITION OF THE Deerfield Collection of Sacred MUSIC,

Compiled from the most approved Authors, ancient and modern, with a view to that simplicity, which is indispensable, and that variety which is important in the Services of the Church, classed according to their facilities of expression; together with a MUSICAL GRAMMAR, containing the necessary definitions, and a variety of remarks and directions, relative to pronunciation, adaptation and execution;—to which is added an Appendix, containing a few set pieces, and a number of occasional and other Hymns, more studiously adjusted than usual to the measure of the Music.—By SAMUEL WILLARD, Minister of Deerfield.

The marked preference given by the public for the former editions of this work, (two large editions of which have been sold) together with the known correct and classical taste of the Author, induces a belief that this 3d ed. which is considerably enlarged and improved, will be considered a standard work, and worthy of the patronage of the lovers of pure and correct Psalmody, throughout the United States.
Price 75 cents single—$7.50 per dozen.
