GOOD NEIGHBOR.
 ties and the comforts of good borhood consist in the supthe selfish, the iracible, and cient passions, and in the culd exercise of those that are nd friendly. He that is attly to his own concerns and nd cares not what becomes of
 : that is envious at the prof-others, or wishes their hurt, or their calamity, cannot be a bor. He only is deserving rader, who is kind, obliging, illing to do a good turn, as receive ones; willing to lend to borrow; who is tender of the and of the interest of those hom he lives; who being a nature himself, is disposed to reasonable allowances for of others; in short, who is of the golden rule, to do to whatsoever he would have to him.

brother then said, that tho' his brother's blood called for revenge, yet, as the children were young, and not able to provide for their mother and themselves, he would remain deaf to these calls for a while, and so left them. Belonging both to the same tribe, they continued to live sociably together, till the eldest son of the murderer killed a deer in hunting. So soon as the brother of the deceased was informed of this, he again called on the murderer, and told him, that his brother's blood now called so loud, that it must be obeyed, especially as his son, having killed a deer could support the family. The murderer said he was ready to die, and thanked the other for so long a delay: On which the wife and children broke into tears. The murderer reproved them for their weakness, and particularly his son, saying to him, did you shed tears when you killed the deer; and if you saw him die with dry eyes, why do you weep for me who am willing to suffer what the custom of our nation renders necessary? With an undaunted countenance he then called on the brother of the deceased to strike; and died without a groan.

A curious ANECDOTE.
THE Greeks waged war upon the duke of Benevento, and made him very uneasy.
 Thedbald, Marquis of Spoleto, his ally, marching to his assistance, and having taken some prisoners, ordered them to be castrated, and in that condition sent them back to the Greek general, with orders to tell him, that he had done it to oblige the emperor, whom he knew to be a lover of eunuchs; and that he would endeavour to send him, in a short time, a much greater number of them. The Marquis was preparing to be as good as his word, when one day a woman, whose husband had been taken prisoner, came all in tears to the camp, and begged to speak to Thedbald. The Marquis having asked her the cause of her grief, my Lord, says she, I wonder that such a valiant hero as you should trifle away your time in warring with women, when men are unable to resist you.
 Thedbald replied, that, since the days of the Amazons, he had never heard that war had been made upon women. My Lord, answered the Greek woman, can a crueller be made upon us, than to deprive our husbands of what gives us health, pleasure, and children? When you make eu-nechs of them, it is mutilating found in arms again. "He has eyes, said she, a nose, hands, and feet: These are his own, which you may take from him if he deserves it; but leave him, if you please, what belongs to Me."
